

An Angel of a Woman

I cherish the moments of love I feel deep within my heart, my spirit, my soul...and on one beautiful sunset evening I journeyed into my peaceful place of imagination, allowing all my ideals and dreams to come to life...and it was there that I met "An Angel of a Woman"...

It warms my heart just knowing that my written expressions brought her to life and feeling my love. I see something in her eyes that allows me to explore the depth of her beauty, grace, elegance, and tenderness. She exudes a positive energy that I am drawn to. It is an honored to share my love with her.

There are a few poems/stories I've written that express the splendor and joy that nature adds to my soul and my passion for expressing love. As it rained today, I wished I could have taken a walk in the rain with her while heavens tear drops caress us along the way.

I long to be in her presence! Some things in life are so special that mere words can not describe their meaning. That's how I feel about my Angel of a Woman. While our souls wait to be united, I wait patiently wishing that they were.

I love you ~ my Angel,

Steven E. Connor ©
February 13, 2003